3. The planned production of sulphuric acid for January 1949 is 30 percent lower than the planned production for December 1948. This does not necessarily mean that there will be a decrease in the production of sulphuric acid, but rather that the DWK has finally realized that the previous quotas were impossibly high.

4. Major repairs still have to be undertaken in most of the plants before any increase in production can be expected. The sulphuric acid plant at Salzwedel has not been completed; some motors and pumps are still needed, and now even iron construction has had to be halted because of shortages of screws, bolts, etc. The DWK has not been able to provide the necessary equipment; at the present time the purchasing agent for the plant is trying to buy it in the British Zone, and will attempt to smuggle it across the border. The reconstruction of the Lurgi furnaces at the Alcid Werk Heinrichshall is progressing very slowly, and even after the parts are all received from Lurgi, some parts like a special ball-bearing gear will have to be obtained from Diamit.
